LIGHTING FIXTURE lasts a long time. Carpets, wall paper, lamps, and other appointments are replaced relatively often.

The entire scheme of a room is likely to be changed several times during the life of the average fixture . . . Choose it, therefore, as a comparatively permanent room mark. Consider it as the centerpiece around which the room effect is built. It should be worthy of that role. It should be shapely, beautifully finished, clearly but unostentatiously elegant.

These are basic virtues. A lighting fixture with such attributes will blend with other elements in the room and combine with them into a pleasing ensemble. It will serve satisfactorily as the centerpiece for successive room treatments.

The fixtures presented in the following pages, however, belong in differing atmospheres. They may be introduced into appropriate or inappropriate settings—with happy or unfortunate results . . . Our experience is yours to command. We will gladly plan with you to the end that each type of fixture may return to you its full, true value and that each room, with the right fixture at the center of it, may be developed into a harmonious whole.

Will you let us have this opportunity?
